

Outlook

RE: New Data Access Request [Ticket# [REDACTED]]

Von [REDACTED] via OpenSky Support <hello@opensky-network.org>Datum Mo, 13.10.2025 17:11An [REDACTED] <[REDACTED]@ethz.ch>

Hallo

Your account has been granted access to our Trino database for any non-commercial purposes. Before using it, you must read through and understand the historical database guide (<https://opensky-network.org/data/trino>). Especially the part about efficient use, and the use of partition keys. Ignoring this will lead to an automatic ban.

We definitely suggest to check out the tools provided by our community: <https://opensky-network.org/data/tools> Note that as a volunteer non-profit we cannot provide any support, but you can join the OpenSky Discord community: <https://discord.gg/RPh89jpVVz>

We would be grateful if you could keep us updated on your project. Please refer to our terms of use (<https://opensky-network.org/about/terms-of-use>) for instructions on how to cite our project in publications.

Finally, in return for continued access we would love for you to feed data to OpenSky, either from your own institution or other locations that you have access to or know someone who does (in Switzerland the best use case would be in the mountains, e.g. Davos). The opportunities are very inexpensive and discussed on this page: <https://opensky-network.org/feed> We are a small volunteer non-profit and this is a tremendous help in extending the data for researchers around the world.

Best from [REDACTED]
[REDACTED]--
The OpenSky Network
<https://opensky-network.org>

--